THE STORY OF LØGISMOSE SKYR

Skyr [sgir'] is a traditional Nordic dairy classic — low in fat (0.2%) and naturally high in protein (10%). Løgismose Skyr is made from Danish organic milk from free-grazing cows, slowly fermented for 24 hours to achieve its creamy texture and clean, well-rounded taste. Perfect as a protein-rich breakfast, nourishing snack on the go, or as a wholesome base for dips and dressings.

The image is a top-down view of a wooden surface decorated with various natural elements. In the top left, there are white daisies and yellow flowers. In the top right, there are purple flowers. In the center, there are two bottles of Naturfrisk Elderflower soft drink. The bottles are made of clear glass and have white labels with green text and illustrations of butterflies and flowers. Next to the bottles are two small glass bowls filled with a golden liquid. The background is a light-colored wooden surface. The text 'NATURFRISK' is written in a green, serif font at the top left. Below it, there is a small illustration of various fruits (apple, pear, orange, lemon, and grapes). Below that, the text 'Drink nature happy!' is written in a bold, green, sans-serif font. Underneath this, a smaller line of text reads 'Organic soft drinks from Denmark with the taste of birdsong and the buzz of insects.' At the bottom left, the website 'www.naturfrisk.dk' is written in a green, sans-serif font.
